

The Colchester County HOMIE SHOW

Building a Compassionate Community

Dr. Denise Marshall, a palliative care physician and professor at McMaster University, will present a free public lecture on the Compassionate Communities movement in Canada as the First United Church, Truro, commencing at 6:30 pm on March 30th. Dr. Marshall's opinion is any issue affecting a society that has a prevalence, an impact on society, preventable suffering, effective interventions and equity issues, should be considered a public health issue.

Much of the world has already mobilized around palliative care as a public health issue and a theory of practice to do so, has been articulated and embraced. This theory of practice is known internationally as the Compassionate Cities or Compassionate Communities model.
