Truro Daily News Merit Award Life Long Athleticism - Lloyd Coady

"Lloyd is truly an outstanding athlete. Shattering notions of age and fitness, at 93 years of age, he commits to three to four early mornings a week at the RECC gym; often found singing a tune with a smile on his face. Even a broken hip from a biking accident could only keep him down for a short time. He understands the importance of being strong and fit, and is a true role model for all ages in the community.

Outside of the gym, Lloyd is an upstanding member of society volunteering, regularly for many years with "Kane's Kitchen", helping to prepare meals for those in need. He is a member of the Rotary Club as well as the Legion, and has been providing home-care equipment for those in need for many years.

Lloyd Coady is a true gentleman, a life-long athlete and well deserving of the special Truro Daily News Merit Award.
