Family Literacy Day Held Jan. 25th in Great Village

How cool is that? A crowd quickly gathered round to get a first glimpse of a 3D printer in operation, just one of the many creative and informative activities at Family Literacy Day in the Great Village gymnasium.

The Colchester Adult Learning Association (CALA) and Great Village Community Association hosted its annual Literacy Day celebration on Saturday, Jan. 25th.

Brad the Balloon Man was entertaining the youngsters with a magic show and balloon creations.

André Myette hosted a drawing workshop, story teller Pam Lindsay read to children, SuperNOVA presented hands-on science and Future Shop representatives had examples of some of the latest technology on hand.

David Boehm presented information on an upcoming Free Family Bicycle Learning Project, sponsored by CALA. Adults and children will learn basic bike repair skills. For more information phone CALA at 895-2464 or email at .

Children of all ages could pick up some new reading material. Both CALA and the Colchester Regional Library were giving out free books.

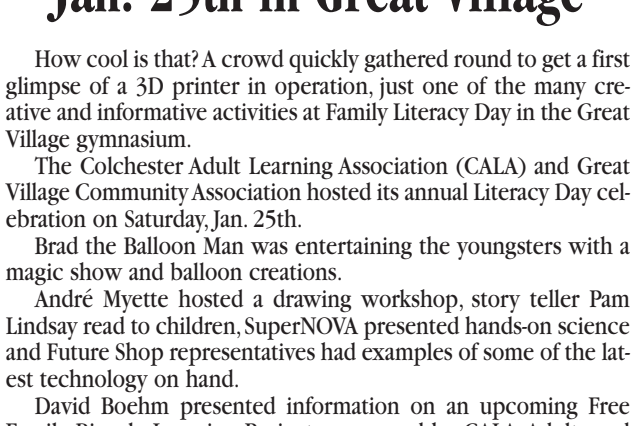
Mike Ross, of Community Access Program (CAP) was displaying the new MakerBot Replicator 2, a 3D printer along with a 3D scanner. "The scanner is brand new, we are the only CAP region in NS to have one," said Mike.

Ever hear of a Mimio Board? Loreen Rushton was giving a demonstration of this interactive white board, something she often uses as a classroom teacher.

Later in the day, it was time to get moving. The Great Village Shotokan Karate group gave an exciting presentation, breaking boards and all! There was a Zoomba demonstration, with the audience invited to participate, and a Kid's Yoga demo.

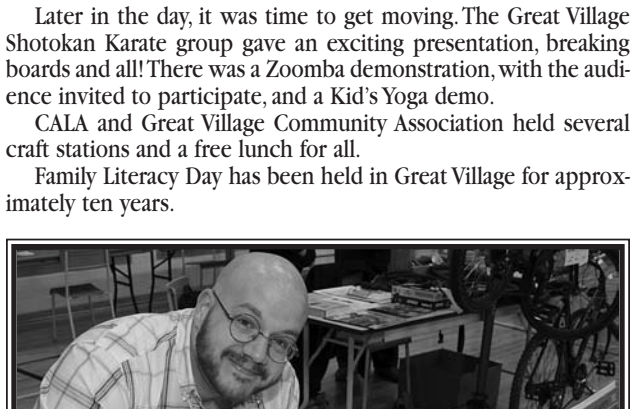
CALA and Great Village Community Association held several craft stations and a free lunch for all.

Family Literacy Day has been held in Great Village for approximately ten years.

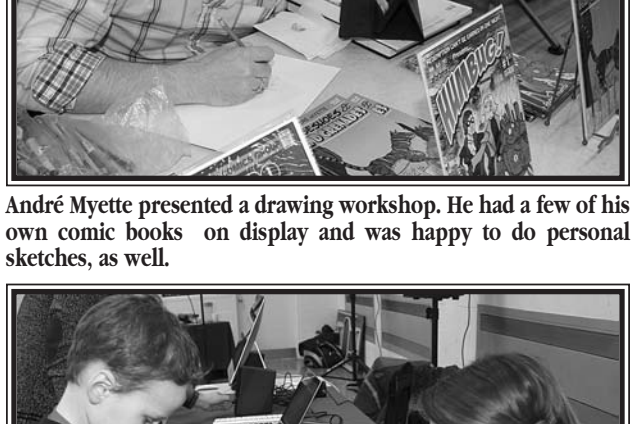


André Myette presented a drawing workshop. He had a few of his own comic books on display and was happy to do personal sketches, as well.

Five year old Wes Taylor gets a bit of help from Future Shop's Shawna Rogers, as he tries out some of the new techonology.



Brad the Balloon Man was making a variety of creations for the kids.



Seven year old Kevin Johnson, of Glenholme, picked out a free book as mom, Cathy Worth looks on. April and Patti Sharpe were looking after the "Free Book" booth at the Literacy Day.
