

Sunset at Partridge Island is always a delight, and the little cottage adds to the beautiful images. Photos by Lawrence R Nicoll.

The storm Dec 23rd was impressive, and not hard to understand how the shores get damaged both at the Ottawa House and 1st Beach, Parrsboro. Photos by Lawrence R Nicoll.

High Tide was just that in Parrsboro today, coming up over the back road and filling the Aboiteau

Maple Season Coming Soon

Maple season is right around the corner! If you wish to view an interesting documentary about the maple industry and producers in Cumberland County check out the January 2023 Cumberland Forestry Advisory Committee newsletter. If you can not find the link contact CFAC at: CumberlandForestry@outlook.com

This documentary, which shines a spotlight on Cumberland's maple syrup industry, and tells the sweet story of its passionate producers in Cumberland County, Nova Scotia.

Cumberland County is home to 70% of the Province's maple sugar taps, and to many diverse maple camps. Each location has their own unique twists and yummy treats to be savoured. You can discover walking trails, pancake restaurants, maple taffy and water wheels, with each maple camp packing its own unique experience that you and your taste-buds will love.

This film was created to inspire you to get out and explore this incredible industry for yourself, and support the amazing local families that have enriched our community for generations. You can check out our map of Cumberland Maple Producers over on our website under the "Resources" tab. Huge thanks to Bill Davison, Neil Ripley, Tracey Bowden and Kevin McCormick for telling their stories and allowing us to share them with you all.

Nova Social Media & Marketing directed and produced this documentary. You are encouraged to share this video and help us spread the word about the maple producers of Cumberland.
