Educational Classes on High Blood Pressure Being Offered

The Colchester East Hants Health Authority (CEHHA) began offering educational classes on high blood pressure as part of a pilot project during the week of December 9th, because in Nova Scotia, about 3 in every 10 adults have a condition known as Hypertension (high blood pressure).

The classes are being supported through at $3000 grant from the Diabetes Care Program of Nova Scotia, Cardiovascular Heath Nova Scotia and the Nova Scotia Renal Program. These organizations have teamed up to support programs and partnerships like this in an effort to address and reduce common risk factors associated with chronic disease.

Individuals who have been told they have high blood pressure, who have a family member with high blood pressure and anyone interested in learning more are welcome to attend one of the group classes being offered over the next few months. The classes will be held on a weekday evening at the Colchester East Hants Health Centre and will run about one and a half to two hours. The classes will cover important information about high blood pressure including: what blood pressure is; the normal range for your blood pressure; the causes and effects of high blood pressure; how to lower your blood pressure and other healthy lifestyle advice

Even though the first class started in mid December, several others will be offer between now and March.

To sign up for this class or for more information, please contact Tracy Selway at 893 5554 ext 42548 or at Tracy.Selway@cehha.nshealth.ca
