

Municipality of the County of Colchester and
The Town of Truro present the 2017 Volunteer Awards

Anne & Earl Lyon are driving forces in Middle Stewiacke and work hard for the Wheels to Meals program.

The Brookfield Athletic Association, formed in 1936, is a leader assisting with sporting developments in the community. Pictured above is (L-R): Councillor Geoff Stewart, Dawn Carter Henderson, Julie MacKenzie and Mayor Christine Blair.

Marie Benoit and Shannon Barnes are credited with revising Debert Days in 2016 and have big plans to grow the once-famous "Debert Days" over the next few years.

Joan Thompson, now residing in Truro is a sister of Burchell Filmore, Central Economy spends a lot of her time volunteering for the Marigold Cultural Centre.

The Upper Stewiacke Volunteer Fire Department was recognized for a community group volunteer award, because of how quickly the 49 dedicated members respond to the community's needs.

Dawson Snook, Tatamagouche, even though he is only 15 years old accepts his recognition for countless hours of volunteering. He helps at church suppers, pancake suppers and even both times the RCMP Musical Ride visited the area.

Blair Carter accepts his award for many years of volunteering and is a driving force on the board of Maggie's Place.

Megan Burgess was recognized for her contribution to basketball coaching.
