Aiming Higher

The Bearcats backed into the playoffs last season to keep their streak alive, having never missed the MHL post-season since returning to the league in 1997-98, and are now hoping a core of players who were getting their first taste of Junior A action can take that next step. Truro made just five trades this off-season, and only one was within the league as Craig Ryan (1-5-6) was dealt to Pictou County.

Tough decisions on the Blueline

Six defensemen from last season entered camp hoping to return to the Bearcats in 2019-20 flanked by a number of recent draft picks. Zach Welsh, who turns 16 on the first day of the MHL season, was a late cut from Cape Breton of the QMJHL and will join a strong group of returnees in Jack McGovern (3-12-15), Curtis Heffernan (8-14-22), Lauchie MacDonald (7-12-19), and Marc Aucoin (0-3-3). Truro is always known for its stellar defensive play and this season should be no different.

But can they Score?

The Bearcats are far from the only team who need to see a boost in goal scoring, but last year marked the first time Truro ever finished with a negative goal differential. Getting Ben Higgins back after three seasons with the QMJHL's Halifax Mooseheads will certainly help, especially with G Blackmore (11-18-29) as his likely linemate. Other returnees include Carson Lanceleve (9-18-27), Caleb Hart (5-5-10), Cole Julian (5-8-13), and Luke MacMillan (1-5-6), but the biggest boost might come from those players acquired from outside the MHL.

Spencer Blackwell, Zak Yewchuk, and Bryan Laureigh made their presence known in camp and exhibition play.

Goaltending Experience

Alec MacDonald appears set to finally take over as Truro's starter and there's no reason to believe he can't succeed in that role having posted a 2.82 GAA (7th best in the MHL) and .915 save percentage (5th best) last season. Sébastien Plamondon was acquired from Rayside-Balfour of the NOJHL to share duties in goal.

Atlantic Vitality Expo – September 26-28

By Maurice Rees

The Atlantic Vitality Expo, which is replacing the former Senior's Expo, will be held at the RECC September 26-28 and is expected to draw an attendance of 5,000. Council at the committee meeting on August 8th was drawing a consensus of denying a request for $2,000 through the Community Event Grant Policy until it learned the Town of Truro has approved a similar request.

The original thinking of councillors was they would pay their share loss through the ongoing annual financial guarantees to the RECC with Town of Truro on a yearly basis.

In its application RECC staff stated, The Atlantic Vitality Expo; "AVX" ignites a gathering in the heart of Atlantic Canada, bringing together wellness leaders and community members to inspire positive action that will shape the future of Atlantic Canada's Health. Both exhibitors and attendees will be motivated through a collaborative experience showcasing the latest innovations in the health and wellness marketplace.

"With much of today's awareness focusing solely on the rising costs of healthcare, many of us do not realize that the simple lifestyle choices that we make every day can be part of the solution for improved health and wellbeing. Sometimes we do not realize the value of our health until it is gone" Matt Moore, General Manager of the Rath Eastlink Community Centre stated.

"Our goal is to build a platform for improved wellness through the annual activation of the AVX. This is more than a marketing campaign, it is more than an expo, and this is our urgent call to action for residents and stakeholders alike! We as Atlantic Canadians have the highest scoring rates for obesity and sedentary lifestyles in the entire country and it is extremely important that we as leaders influence positive lifestyle change for our future generations", says Moore.
