Cultural Campus 2017: A Creative Candy Shop!

By Robert More

Parrsboro Creative is presenting its third season of popular arts and artisan courses, and the line-up is more dynamic than ever with an amazing selection of creative adventures to choose from: painting, photography, rug-hooking, blacksmithing, basketry, photography, music and much more!

This year's Cultural Campus kicks off on May 27/28 with Heather Lawson's workshop in Stone Carving. This is one of our most popular events and is tailored for both beginners and advanced with Heather setting a working atmosphere that makes everyone feel right at home.

The next course is a Blacksmithing session on June 2 at the beautiful Age of Sail Museum. With Master Blacksmith Michael Tennyson at the helm, these fascinating courses which run at intervals from June right through to September, are already selling well; and for 2017, Michael has expanded the repertoire to include - pokers, flowers, knife and sword making.

The brilliant Janet Doble is returning with her pottery classes during July and August, and Ottawa House Museum, situated in a breath-taking location right on the shore of The Bay of Fundy, is offering a brand new course.

If you would like to learn the art of rug-hooking, here's your chance as Dwight Gallagher is leading a class on June 24.

Following this is one of the highlights of the season. Tom Forrestall, one of Canada's premier painters and an artist with an international reputation, is giving an intensive in The Magic of Egg Tempera July 5 to July 9.

His son William, a highly respected artist in his own right, will also be there, and this five day session promises to be a truly extraordinary experience.

There are many other unique workshops coming up as well with 2016 favourites returning: Photography with Lawrence Nicoll (Composition & the Art of Seeing), Watercolour with Joy Laking, Pat Reid's The Art of English Willow Basketry, and Plein Air Painting with William Rogers.

And as if this wasn't enough, there are more new courses: Wayne Boucher's workshop in impressionistic painting, and for history/sailing era buffs, there's an intriguing session at Ottawa House called "The Canvas Bucket" - bring your darning needle.

And - James Hill, master of the ukulele, is also returning. "Places are already being snapped up", says Executive Director Robert More, "and one class -Monika Wright's Abstract Composition & Colour - is sold out.

So, if you see something you like, don't wait or you may miss it!"
