“Cardboard to Boat” – August 20, 2011

and Germany. Team members were laughing and enjoying their afternoon of boat building but did not seem optimistic about its seaworthiness. They had named their boat the Titanic because they said, “we know it is going to sink.”

There was a “Parade of Sail” from the Church to Logan Spencer’s pond, where heats of four boats competed in a timed crossing.

Spectators lined the banks of the pond and cheered on the boat’s Captains. Some paddlers had no trouble completing the short distance, arriving on shore high and dry, but many boats sank right off the start line, their paddler getting a cooling swim on the hot summer’s day.

Logan Spencer and his grandson Jacob Spencer provided emergency “Coast Guard” support out on the pond. Several rescues were made, with all boats and paddlers returned safely to shore.

Brother and sister team, Kelsey and Danica Laking, were awarded first prize for the fastest time, with Team Spencer in second place.
