

2015 Foam Fest had Fabulous Fun Times!

Hundreds turned out to run 5K up and around the hills at Ski Wentworth on Saturday, August 15th. The event included several foam filled obstacles which had a welcoming cooling effect on a very hot summer's day (Harrington Photos)

And they are off! Many teams chose to dress in colorful matching costumes for the event.

Jada Totten and Michaela Priest make their way out of the Death Drop, enjoying the cool water at the bottom.

Screams and giggles could be heard as Hannah and Gena Priest flew down the Death Drop slide.

A local team of Liza Madore, Karri Wilson, Gena Priest, Jada Totten, Michaela Priest and Hannah Priest had a lot of fun completing the 5K Foam Fest run.

Not everyone could take this leap of faith off the Sky Tower.

Suds were floating through air as 5K participants make their way through the obstacles.

Parking Permits to Hang From Rear View Mirror

By Christine Urquhart

Permanent Accessible Parking Identification Parking Permits (the blue card with the wheel chair symbol on it) are supposed to be hung from your rear view mirror when you are parked in a handicap spot. According to Access Nova Scotia the permit is NOT to be displayed while the vehicle is being operated.

I see so many cars passing me with these blue cards dangling from the rear view mirror, distracting the drivers. Please remove it before you drive away. Remember that only the person who's name is on the parking card is entitled to use it, and they must be in the vehicle for it to be displayed.

If you and your partner are both disabled you both need a card. One card does not do for both of you. Also, if you are travelling out of province, you should check to see if your blue card is accepted where you are going. They are not accepted in many states in the USA. You can apply for special handicap parking cards for where you are heading if you feel that is necessary.
