If you were hungry at noon-time, these ladies had four choices for a hot snack at Heritage Day. (Rees Photo)

Can you remember when replacing the buck saw, chainsaws weighed in at around 30 pounds. This trailer load was part of the display from the North Shore Antique Engine Club during Bass River Heritage Day. (Rees Photo)

Pull the handle to turn the agitator to wash the clothes, slide the cover aside then turn another handle to put the clean clothes through the wringer. Didn't need electricity and the laundry person was the source of power. (Rees Photo)

If you were doing laundry 1900-1910, this is the machine you wanted. Rocks the clothes back and forth, and included a hand-cranked wringer, so you didn't have to wring out the water by hand. (Rees Photo)
